

Santa Paula Water Recycling Facility Achieves Final Completion

The Santa Paula Water Recycling Facility has received its formal Notice of Final Completion from the City of Santa Paula. Santa Paula Water, the partnership of PERC Water and Alinda Capital Partners, received the notification from the City on February 15, 2011 in response to their October 12, 2010 submission package that demonstrated they had met the agreed upon requirements.

"Our team is pleased the City of Santa Paula has formally recognized the facility's completion," said Brian Cullen,

President of PERC Water. "From the early conceptual stage of the project, we worked closely with the City to ensure the facility not only met the State mandated requirements and brought the City back into compliance, but that it sets a new standard for water infrastructure in technological innovation, fiscal responsibility, and energy efficiency."

The facility was designed, permitted, built and commissioned in 23 months, and on May 13, 2010, seven months ahead of schedule, the facility began treating the entirety of the City's wastewater. The recycled water it produced this past January is on average 60% cleaner than the Regional Water Quality Control Board permit requires.

In addition, the City saved on average more than $10,000 a month in the first seven months of operation as a result of PERC Water's investment in energy saving technology. The facility is considered one of the most energy-efficient and cost-effective of its kind in the world.
